

Senior School (Years 7-12)

Extension Studies

Extension Studies, operating as part of the Senior School Centre for Learning (CFL), is a program dedicated to supporting the unique learning needs of students who have high ability and high motivation. The program seeks to help students find pathways to identify, develop and release their talent for personal fulfilment, and for positive social contribution.

Identification

Identification of learning needs is through a variety of means, including self nomination, teacher nomination and individual referral. A range of formal and informal data measures are used to support the identification of students who may benefit from Extension Studies provisions, and to monitor the ongoing benefits of, engagement with, and enjoyment of, the various opportunities on offer.

Extension Studies and Co-Curricular Opportunities

Students have the opportunity to participate in the following activities, with more activities on offer throughout each year as they become available. Extension Studies opportunities are carefully selected and curated to help meet the learning needs of gifted students, as they:

- are rigorous and challenging
- give students exposure to deep and complex ideas
- address issues of global significance
- require students to grow in their skills and capacities
- provide students with opportunities to engage with, and learn from, like minds within and beyond Scotch College.

Students, staff and parents can also make suggestions about opportunities that could be included in the program. Participation is predominately through student self-nomination, however a very small number of opportunities require audition or performance standards
